

2. Task – Pages

The first double page (pages 70-71) that I chose is interesting, because on the left page you could guess for the first time just by looking through it, that this could be a book about architecture.

The next pages (pages 192 – 193), I found interesting because of the layout, it looks like a new chapter is starting. This is the first chapter that is introduced by an illustration.

The last two pages are interesting because of the illustration on the left. It shows a compass with different directions and it looks to me like the directions are labeled with buildings. The book also shows many illustrations that could refer to shipbuilding or to the ship trade of that time.
